MEMORANDUM ON MIGRATION

TO THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE

FROM THE CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS

In the monograph on "The Displacement of Population in Europe" published by the International Labour Office in 1943, Dr. Eugene M. Kulischer stated "The attempts made before the present war to revive migration have shown that its revival will depend in future on the existence of an international organization capable of co-ordinating the interests of the countries of emigration and immigration."

True as this statement is, it is no less clear that unlike the transfer of inanimate resources such as raw materials and manufactured goods, the migration of human beings necessitates proper regard for the welfare of the migrants themselves, in addition to the interests of the countries of emigration and immigration.

The I.L.O. study to which we have already referred recognizes the importance of this human factor when it states "In the contracting world economy before the war, government policy necessarily tended to be restrictive. If an expansionist economy is created after the war through international cooperation, the organization canalizing this collaboration will have to deal with movements of men as well as with movements of capital and goods....Millions of people have been victimized by a narrow nationalism which has had a total disregard for human beings. They can be helped only by international cooperation and organization."

As an organization interested in the welfare of Canada and of those who leave the countries of their origin voluntarily or because of persecution, and who would like to make Canada their home, the Canadian Jewish Congress and its affiliate, the United Jewish Relief Agencies in Canada, are deeply interested in many of the problems which find a place on the agenda of the sessions of the Permanent Migration Committee of the I.L.O., particularly those dealing with forms of international cooperation capable of facilitating the organized resumption of migration movements, racial discrimination in connection with migration, and the technical selection of migrants.

We are confident that the members of your committee and the experts appointed by your governing body are aware of many of the problems and difficulties which have beset those compelled to seek homes in new lands where they may hope to find security and happiness, but we venture to draw your attention particularly to a few of these problems, in the hope that you may see fit to deal with them in the recommendations you will make to the governing body of the I.L.O. and through it to the countries represented thereon.

There are three main categories of restrictions against prospective immigrants which have been and still are being practised by many countries of immigration.

1. Restrictions based on personal disqualifications, such as physical or mental disability, criminal record, belief in the overthrow of government by force, illiteracy, previous occupation, or lack of sufficient funds to prevent the possibility of becoming a public charge, or being an enemy alien.

BRIEF PRESENTED TO THE SENATE COMMITTEE ON IMMIGRATION
BY SAUL HAYES, NATIONAL EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS AND UNITED JEWISH RELIEF AGENCIES,
JULY 3, 1948.

I am gratified with the opportunity to appear before this Committee. In the annals of the Jews of Canada this is a historic occasion for it is the first time that a representative of the community appears before a parliamentary committee to state its views on immigration into this country. For this reason I might be permitted to say a word about the Canadian Jewish Congress which has delegated me here. The Congress is the organization representing all sections of the Jewish community of Canada. This organization has been charged by the Jewish community with the particular responsibility of presenting its views to the authorities on questions of common interest and to bring every possible assistance to Jews in other lands who have been victims of discrimination and of Hitlerism. Our organization represents every single interest in the community including the various Zionist organizations and the institutions especially interested in immigration such as the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society of Canada, the Council of Jewish Women and similar groups.

On questions of national policies and partisan problems the Jewish community of Canada, of course, divides up every way and no one is authorized to speak for all of them. Certainly I would not presume to do so. It is an interesting historical fact that the seven Canadian Jews who have sat in the House of Commons represented every section of Canada geographically from Montreal west to Victoria and that they included members of just about every political party in Canadian history. However, there are some common interests that unite the Jews of Canada and it is in the presenting of views on these questions that I have made bold to appear before this committee.

Like all other Canadians except the Indians, the Jews of Canada trace their origins back overseas and they retain interest in certain cultural and

BRIEF PRESENTED BY THE CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS
TO THE
STANDING COMMITTEE
ON IMMIGRATION AND LABOUR
OF THE SENATE OF CANADA
MAY 7th, 1947

The Canadian Jewish Congress expresses its thanks to the Senate Committee on Immigration and Labour on behalf of the community of Canadian Jews for the opportunity of appearing before it to make known its views on what is surely one of the major problems to which the people of Canada must address themselves.

May we also use a moment or two of the time allotted to us to enter a tribute to the Senate of Canada for the reconvening of this important committee and to the committee itself for the splendid service it gave last summer and continues to give in the creation of a national forum for the expression of a public opinion on matters of special consequence. Under these official auspices of Parliament such an inquiry is of extraordinary usefulness. Objectively, soberly, and with a desire to obtain the facts, this sub-committee has set and now sits again to assess information, enabling it to present its findings to the Senate in the great tradition of a free Parliament in a free land. The Senate has achieved a certain amount of its objective. I do not think it would be an exaggeration to say that the report of this Sub-Committee has influenced the governing powers who have recently, through the Prime Minister, announced a new set of immigration regulations. On this the Senate is to be congratulated and it is to be hoped that the Sub-Committee will continue to function.

We come before you, frankly, in two capacities. We identify ourselves as Canadian citizens who range themselves alongside other citizens to assert that Canada's interests economically, socially and morally will the better be vouchsafed if we liberalize present laws and fashion them anew so as to bring to Canada many good people who wish to carve out new lives in a new country. We are at one with those who find that our laws are unduly restrictive. Canada's future social and
